We Are Fortune To Enjoy A Great Working Relationship

Jointly Own a Water Utility

We are often asked what exactly is the Water Board if it isn't a department of either city, Coos Bay or North Bend. We've found that an understanding of our history helps in understanding what we are today. The public water system for the Bay Area was established in 1897 under the name of Marshfield Water Company and later became Coos Bay Water Corporation. Both were private companies. In 1947, the Cities of Coos Bay and North Bend jointly purchased the water system from Coos Bay Water Corporation and, through City Charter provisions, established Coos Bay-North Bend Water Board to operate as a non-profit municipal water provider with an appointed four-member board of directors, two from each city, with 4-year terms each. The Water Board is managed in this same way today.

Working Together to Address Homelessness

“ Unlike a public works project or an economic development initiative, homelessness is a complex social issue with many contributing factors that cannot be easily or quickly solved by a single agency or organization. ”
